

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PEERAGES.

THE influence of the Aristocracy in England has always been predominant; and whether the characters of the individuals who constitute it have at some periods been great and glorious, in others disgraceful and pusillanimous, the Memorials of Members forming so prominent a part of the Constitution can never be regarded with indifference. If, indeed, it be true, that the descent of an individual generally presents an important feature in his history, the necessity of collecting and preserving genealogical details is obvious. Of their value and importance most persons are fully sensible; although some few may be found who affect a contempt for the subject.

Until the reign of James I. no published accounts of the descents and alliances of the Nobility had appeared, notwithstanding that many genealogical works had issued from the press. This, perhaps, may appear singular, when the rank and character of the Noble individuals who in the earlier reigns composed the Peerage are considered; and the more so, upon reflecting how intimately they are associated with all the leading events in the History of England. Mr. Burke, in a strain of eloquent but sarcastic severity, has ridiculed the modern Peerage Writers; more, however, in reference to their indiscriminate flattery, than the truth of their genealogical statements. Notwithstanding such censure, the same eminent individual describes the Nobility as "a graceful ornament in the civil order—the Corinthian capital of polished society:" a description by no means inappropriate to the Members of the Aristocracy, who, during the vicissitudes of Public Life, have such ample scope for the exercise and display of all the virtues which adorn mankind.

Glover, Somerset Herald, a man eminently qualified for the undertaking, from his superior talents and assiduous application, had, during a period of nearly twenty years devoted to his official pursuits, made large collections towards a Baronage of England. He died in 1588; and from those collections, Thomas Milles, his nephew, published in 1610, the "Catalogue of Honor, or Treasury of Nobility." In 1619, Ralph Brooke, York Herald, published his "Catalogue and Succession of the Kings, Princes, Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, and Viscounts of the Realm, since the Norman Conquest;" which was reprinted, with corrections, in 1622. These works, however, were little more than Catalogues of the Names and Titles of Nobility, enumerating the succession of persons, but by no means containing accounts of the families, or their connexions. In the latter year, Augustine

Vincent, Rouge Croix, published his "Discoverie of Errours" in the first edition of Brooke's Catalogue of Nobility; to which was added a Review of the second edition. The prefatory remarks are, perhaps, written in a style of too much severity towards an individual who, whatever might be his errors, was skilful in his profession, and possessed of considerable knowledge. Vincent's indefatigable research, added to his situation as Deputy Keeper of the Records in the Tower, gave him decidedly an advantage over Brooke; and, as far as veracity of statement is concerned, the corrections cannot fail to be appreciated by all who consider it the duty of the historical inquirer to search diligently for and strictly to adhere to truth. To subsequent writers on the subject, this work has been of infinite value.

Between 1622 and 1675, (with the exception of "York's Union of Honour,"*) the press produced only Catalogues of Nobility, consisting of names, dates of creation, &c : in the latter year the first volume of the celebrated BARONAGE of Sir William Dugdale appeared, which was followed, in 1676, by the second and third,—a work which, notwithstanding its partial defects, and the inaccuracies inseparable from so laborious an undertaking, will (without reference to his other highly esteemed and valuable productions) exist to the latest age, a monument of his historical knowledge and antiquarian learning. Numerous have been the writers upon the Peerage since his day, but none have surpassed him in research, and few have even approached his general accuracy ; Dugdale's Baronage, therefore, still remains a work of the highest repute. Of those who have followed his steps, though some have been liberal in their censure, all have proved the value of his labours by the extensive use they have made of the greater portion of his statements.

From the period of Dugdale's publication the following pages present a Catalogue of such printed works as can be designated Peerages, and occur in the library of the Collector; they will be found to contain nearly all that have issued from the press to the year 1827.

It is not presumed that the Catalogue contains any thing rare or curious: many of the volumes are works only for occasional reference; their value however on that account, is not the less to those whose pursuits may lead them to an investigation of the descents of the Peers, by whom the utility of such a Collection will be duly estimated.

1675. THE BARONAGE OF ENGLAND: or an Historical Account of the lives and most memorable actions of our English Nobility, in the Saxons' time to the Norman Conquest; and from thence, of those who had their rise before the end of King Henry the Third's Reign: deduced from Public Records, Ancient Historians, and other authorities; By WILLIAM DUGDALE, Norroy King of Arms. Tome the First. folio.

1676. Tome the Second; from the end of King Henry the Third's Reign, and before the eleventh year of King Richard the Second. folio.

Tome the Third; from the Tenth year of King Richard the Second, until 1676. folio.

1709.* THE PEERAGE OF ENGLAND: or an Historical and Genealogical Account of the present

* This was the first edition of a work which, by its subsequent editions, obtained a high reputation. The compiler, Arthur Collins, (whose name is not prefixed to the early editions) was the son of William Collins, Gentleman Usher to Queen Catherine in 1669, by Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Blyth; and was born in 1682. At the time of publication, Collins was engaged Nobility : containing the Descent, original Creations, and most remarkable Actions of their respective Ancestors ; also the chief Titles of Honour and Preferment they now enjoy ; with their marriages and issue, continued down to this present year, 1709, and the paternal Coats of Arms of each Family in blazon, &c. [By ARTHUR COLLINS.] 8vo.

1710.* THE PEERAGE OF ENGLAND : or an Historical and Genealogical Account of the present in trade as a Bookseller, at the Black Boy in Fleet Street, where he continued in 1715.

In this first edition the arms are blazoned, but not represented by wood-cuts.

* The second edition appeared in 1710, when very inferior wood-cuts of the arms were introduced ; and the Editor, conscious of their defects, observes that it was then " an almost impracticable work to print them with these sheets to any manner of perfection : " to this edition was added, in 1711, a second volume, in two parts, containing an account of extinct Peerages : and the works bound in three volumes, generally occur together ; sometimes the two latter, with the edition of 1709, or the volume of 1710, reprinted in 1712, " with the addition of all the Peers lately created, to July 1712."

A third edition was published in 1714, in two parts ; reprinted in 1715, and again 1717, when the name of Collins does not appear as the Bookseller for whom it was printed : so that, probably, at this period he had quitted business, and afterwards devoted himself to the collection of materials for an extended and 1711.* THE PEERAGE OF ENGLAND: or a Genealogical and Historical Account of all the flourishing Families of this Kingdom, who have borne the dignity of Peerage, either by Tenure, Summons to Parliament, Investiture, or Creation, &c. from the Saxons' time to this present year, 1711, &c. Vol. II., in two parts, 8vo. forming a Second Volume to the preceding Edition.

improved work, a specimen of which he published in a 4to. volume, in 1727; but not meeting with sufficient encouragement to proceed with so expensive an undertaking, he relinquished the design. In 1735, however, he published an enlarged edition, in 3 vols. 8vo. under which year, the subsequent editions are noticed.

This is in fact the second volume in two parts published in 1711, with new title-pages, and a Supplement containing 32 pages; these two parts, with the date 1714, frequently occur with the preceding edition of 1714, and form four volumes.

* Although the former editions to which Collins's name is in this Catalogue affixed, were his productions, it was not until the publication of the specimen of a Baronage, in 1727, that his name appears on the title-page as the Editor. The failure of that work, for want of a due encouragement, probably induced him to present the public with an edition on a smaller scale of expense. This, therefore, was considered the first edition of a new work, and certainly the most perfect and comprehensive account of the then existing state of the Peerage. Upon this foundation were raised the various subsequent editions, which have always been referred to as respectable authority, and esteemed as works of merit. From the indefatigable perseverance and general fidelity of Collins, his successors have found but little opportunity for improvement in the genealogical detail of the descents of noble families, as far as he treated upon the subject. Engraved Plates of the Arms and Supporters of the Peers, are prefixed to this edition.

A second edition appeared in 1741, in 4 vols. ; to which a Supplement, in 2 vols. was added in 1750. The real value of the works of this indefatigable antiquary does not appear to have been, in general, sufficiently estimated, as in the preface to this Supplement, Collins complains that he found from those in power, such a want of public spirit in affording him encouragement, that after spending his fortune in collecting from records, manuscripts, and historians, full accounts of all who have been Barons of the realm, they would be lost to the world without some provision to enable him to print them. In 1752, it appears, by an extract from his Diary, that he made a representation to the Duke of Newcastle, who had promised him support in procuring some preferment or provision, as well as to others of the Nobility, but not with any immediate success.

The third edition, in 5 vols. appeared in 1756, and was the last of which he superintended the publication. The preface to this impression renews his complaint at the neglect of his services; and evidently under feelings of disappointment, he remarks that he could cite instances of the preferment of other Authors, though it had been his hard fate to be soliciting the chief in power, (except his most gracious Majesty and his Royal Family,) for several years without effect; and that he had not been wanting in setting forth, by a printed case, his pretensions, a place having been resigned to him by a relation, and given from him, to proceed on the work he had been engaged in, with a promise of being better provided for. Soon afterwards, it appears (from a statement in Chalmers's Biographical Dictionary,) that Collins obtained from the King a pension of 400*l.* per annum. This provision he seems to have enjoyed but a very short time, as he closed a life most perseveringly devoted, for upwards of half a century, to the promotion of historical, genealogical, and antiquarian pursuits, at Battersea, on the 16th of March, 1760. Dying intestate, his widow administered to his effects. His MS. collections, probably, became the property of his son, Major-General Arthur Tooker Collins. Since his death, the Peerage has passed through three editions, under the editorship of different persons; viz. a fourth in 1768; a fifth in 1779; with a supplemental volume in 1784; and a sixth in 1812:—in the preface to which last edition, the editor has not displayed a very accurate knowledge of the various impressions of this work.

and Collateral Lines, &c. By ARTHUR COLLINS, Esq. 3 vols. 8vo.: the 2d vol. being in two parts, it generally forms four volumes.

Collins was also the Compiler and Editor of the following works; viz.—

The Baronetage of England. 2 vols. 8vo. 1720: republished with a new title, to which he affixed his name, in 1742.

The Life of the celebrated William Cecil, Lord Burleigh. 8vo. 1732.

* In the 2d Vol., under the article, "PERCY, EARL OF NORTHUMBERLAND," p. 735—769, are some exceedingly curious Letters and Memorials, from Henry Earl of Northumberland to the King, the Queen, and Lords of the Council, &c., relating to the charges made against him, when suspected of being concerned in the Gunpowder Plot. The Earl being convicted in the Star Chamber of misprision, suffered a severe fine and long imprisonment. These letters cannot be read without leaving reflections not very favourable to the character of King James and some of his court, whilst they evince a generous feeling and noble spirit on the part of the Earl, which, Collins observes, "no oppression could depress." These interesting Letters and Memorials are omitted in some of the subsequent editions.

CATALOGUES & LISTS OF THE NOBILITY, BARONETS AND KNIGHTS.

Those Works, the titles of which are recited at the bottom of the pages as Notes, although not in this collection, are noticed as being connected with the subject, and occasionally referred to. Some of them are scarce, and will be found described in Gore's Catalogue of Authors who have written "de Re Heraldicâ," 1674; or "Moule's Bibliotheca Heraldica," 1822.

CATALOGUES, LISTS, &c.

1610. THE CATALOGVE OF HONOR, OF TRESVEY OF TREVE NOBILITY, PECVLIAR AND PROPER TO THE ISLE OF GREAT BRITAINNE, that is to say, a Collection Historical of all the free Monarchs, as well Kinges of England as Scotland (nowe vnited together,) with the Princes, of Walles, Dukes, Marquisses, and Erles, their Wiues, Children, Alliances, Families, Descentes, and Achievements of Honovr. This was the Collection of Robert Glover, Somerset Herald, who died 1588. Thomas Milles, the translator and publisher, was his nephew.

A great proportion of the impressions of the Work are defective; great pains having been taken by some persons to mutilate page 493, by cutting out the passage containing an account of the natural children of CHARLES BLOUNT, BARON MONTJOY,—which in a perfect copy is as follows: "Naturall children, which he had by Penelope, daughter to Walter Devereux, Earle of Essex, and sister to Robert Earl of Essex, she being wife to Robert Baron Rich."

{ Charles.
Montjoy.
Saint Johns.
Elizabeth.
And another daughter.

To a few copies of this Second Edition, Mr. Anstis (in his MS. Collections for a Biographical account of the Officers of Arms) says, a statement of Brooke's case was prefixed; but they were so scarce in his day, that he had not been able to procure such a copy of the work, though he had a transcript of the case.

A DISCOVERIE of ERROURS in the First Edition of the CATALOGUE of NOBILITY. Published by RAPHE BROOKE, Yorke Herald, 1619, and printed heerewith word for word, according to that Edition. * Two earlier editions of this Catalogue exist, viz.

1630. A CATALOGUE of the NOBILITY of England and Ireland, with the addition of the Baronets of England, the Dates of their Patents, the several Creations of the Knights of the Bath, from the Coronation of King James, to this Present. By T. W. 4to.

This work appears to have been compiled from the Docquet books of the Patents; and it is stated in the Preface that a Catalogue of BARONETS was by authority published in 1667, to the end that such as had obtained Patents for that honour, which were not enrolled, should, by discerning an omission of their names therein, take care to supply that defect;— and that, after twelve years and more, no Enrolments were to be found for sundry persons who have assumed this title, which causeth some to doubt whether they could make any justifiable claim thereto; “Whereas therefore no person whatsoever ought to take upon them this Title of Dignity, but such as have been really advanced thereto by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of England ; it is thought fit by the Right Honorable Robert Earl of Aylesbury, who now exerciseth the office of Earl Marshal of England, that this present Catalogue of such, touching whom the docquet books remaining with the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery do take notice, shall be published, to the end that those of whom no memorial upon record is to be found to justify their right to this title, may be known," &c.
